What was your focus on this year? Whether it was a dream of winning the big game, a goal of actually understanding math class, or a hope of making this your most memorable year of high school, we all had something to strive for. . .something to focus on. So which part do you remember most? Was it the Boys Cross Country team making it to state, the last dance of your first prom, or sitting in the crowd watching eight of our varsity wrestlers compete in the state competition? Those were our memories. . .those were the kinds of things that got our attention. It was time to see this year for what it really was. It was time to focus on us . . .and focus on you.

Santa Claus, known to most as senior John Elich, poses with one of the children at the annual Christmas party held in the commons. The event, which was sponsored by the Student Council, brought less fortunate children from around the city to our school for an afternoon of fun in celebration of the holidays.

Dancing for the crowd at the Homelycoming competition, senior Noah Wells gives it his all in hopes of being crowned Homelycoming Queen later in the night. Although all of the contestants put on a good show, in the end, senior Blake Allee was announced the winner.

a closer look

Was this year really any different from all the rest? In many ways it was just another year, but within the hallways of Warren Central the students were making it a year that we would never forget. This year brought the changing of the millennium, fears of Y2K, and inevitably the biggest New Year's Eve celebration the world had ever seen. But for most of us the anticipation of 2000 was diminished long before the party ever started. Instead we saw what really mattered about this year. We were in the crowd when the Boys Basketball team won the county championship for the first time in 29 years, we supported the Student Council's efforts to reach out into the community to help others, and we witnessed the unveiling of the township's Vision 2005 plan. We even went outside the world that we created within these walls to show our spirit in cheering the Colts on through numerous victories until their final loss to Tennessee during the AFC playoffs. It was our thoughts and actions, not the new millennium, that made this year different from all the rest.

. . . On You

Twenty years from now you will open this book to remember the way it was. As you flip through the pages will you remember your first homecoming game? Perhaps the ups and downs of dating will come to mind. Maybe you will remember the excitement of Winterfest or when you did something embarrassing; or maybe you will just remember that time of being a student, that day, that year.

It's only fitting that one of our most unique homecoming weeks occurs during one of the most unique years of our lifetime. Because of the four day week Homecoming week was even more frenzied than usual, and unfortunately, a few things had to lose out. "Class Colors Day" and the annual "Powder Puff Football Game" were eliminated from the line-up.

New dress codes interfered with the proposed "Biceps and Bellies" contest, causing it to be biceps all around.

Despite these changes, school spirit reigned supreme. As always it was a chance for the school to band together and cheer our team on to victory. The Homecoming Dance added the finishing touches to a memorable and historical week.

Students Alicia Taylor, Chanelle Walker, Sherena Downs and Danielle Murff dance the night away at the 1999 Homecoming Dance. This was the first formal dance of the year, and everyone dressed to impress.

The junior class struck gold with its latest fund-raiser, a compatibility survey. Junior class president Jonathan Schwarz learned about the fund-raiser from a student at Valparaiso High School, while attending the Student Leadership Institute.

Junior class advisors passed out questionnaires to various English, Spanish and Social Studies teachers. The questionnaire asked questions about favorite foods, interests, religion, and what time period they would like to live in. The questionnaires were then sent to the company, Computer Fun, for processing.

Two weeks later, the results were in and on sale in the cafeteria. Students could buy their top ten matches, two least compatible matches, and two best friends matches in their grade level for $2.00, or all grade levels for $2.50. Over 1200 students completed the forms and close to 500 students purchased the results. "Our goal was to get at least half of the students to buy their results. It was a huge success," said junior class advisor Mr. Salemi.

The money the fund-raiser earned will be used to sponsor an activity and pay off debts. When asked if the class will use this fund-raiser again, Salemi responded, "Absolutely, we believe that the next time we do this we will have an even bigger response."

Take A Look Back

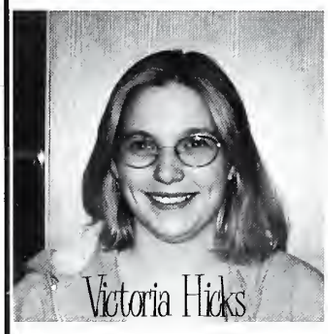
Seniors take a look back at their years in high school to tell us a story about their best or worst memory.

Justin Beriault

The greatest times of my high school years would have to have been during basketball season. The run that our team put together on our road to Hinkle, will probably be remembered more than anything else. I thank my coaches, teamates, and everyone who was there for us.

My freshman year, I kissed a senior I didn't know at the homecoming football game. All my best friends made me feel so bad that I about cried. Nita Shaw's dad saw me and told me that "fifteen million Chinese people don't care," so why should I? That's the best advice I ever got and it helped me through high school.

Kristi Randall



Victoria Hicks

My best memory is of my first day of school at Warren. I came second semester of my freshman year. No one had talked to me all day, so when I walked into class I was surprised to hear a loud "Hey come sit with us." A girl named Ashlee reached out and invited me into her life. . .we've been best friends ever since.

Being Activity Coordintor of Student Council was the best memory of my high school career. I had the opportunity to work with great people and gain eight new best friends. I love you Mrs. Wolff, Ms. Moellor, Danitra, Sean, Dustin, Julie, Andrea, and Nita!

It has been twelve years of teachers, tests, quizzes, and homework. It has been twelve years of school lunch, fire drills, jammed lockers, and P.E. It has been twelve years of counting the hours until school is out, counting the days until summer vacation, but now there is nothing left to count. The days used to stretch in front of us and now they are gone in a flash. Now we will remember the good parts: friends, boyfriends, girlfriends, games, dances, field trips, recess, and snow days. The moment we have worked towards, dreamed of, and waited for is here. Soon elementary school, middle school, and high school will all be a fond memory. We will look back and realize that what we have learned in these halls will follow us everywhere. We will look back and realize that it was worth the wait.

Making a Difference...

BY... Setting a Good Example

"Setting a good example is role modeling and demonstrating exemplary behaivor through thoughts, actions, and deeds to the school,"stated principal Tony Burchett. It is important for the upperclassmen to set a positive influence for the others here at Warren. They need to set a path that the underclassmen can follow with first-class. "As goes the senior class, as goes the school. Seniors set a standard that we strive to meet and each class will take it to the next level." Throughout the year, various seniors and underclassmen are chosen for setting a good example during a certain period of time. Teachers and or club leaders nominate students for doing something out of the ordinary that makes a difference.

Once a year, the Setting a Good Example banquet is held to honor students who have had a positive influence. Coaches, teachers, or club leaders feel the students have been role models and have shined their own light. Over 450 students and parents were in attendance along with Mayor Bart Peterson and four Hall of Fame inductees. This is the fifth successful year for the banquet. The guest speakers recognized how important it is to have a positive influence in the real-world. The selected students are looked highly on for their strong potential and leadership qualities.

National Merit Contest Winners

The class of 2000 had 5 National Merit Finalists and 1 National Achievement Scholar, Dadrian Eason.

Jamie Giles

Jamie Giles will be going to Purdue University. She plans on becoming a missionary doctor. Jamie was the Editor-in-chief of the Warren Owl. She was a member of National Honor Society, Student Council, and the soccer and track teams. Jamie says that Warren taught her "that you can always work harder than you think, so you should set high goals."

Robert Fairhead

Robert Fairhead will be either an Electrical Engineering or a Mathematics major at Brown University. Bob was member of the Brain Game team, National Honor Society, Academic Super Bowl, French Club, and French Honor Society. Bob says, "I would like to retire at 35, live on an island with my wife and kids, and enjoy life."

Matthew Dobbins

Matthew Dobbins will be a theatre major at Pennsylvania State University next fall. While at Warren, Matt was involved in Latin Club, Drama Club, the Thespian Society, and spellbowl. After finishing college, Matt plans to start a career as a professional actor.

Dadrian Eason

Dadrian Eason will be attending Purdue University to major in Computer Engineering. Dadrian participated in Warren's National Honor Society, Student Council, Spanish Club, WALEED, Kappa League, Band Orchestra, and senior class council. He says, "Above all, Warren has taught me, no matter if I'm at school, at work, or at play, to approach things with respect to those around me, and more importantly with respect to myself."

Casey Goodman

Casey Goodman will be attending Stanford University as a biology and music major. Casey participated in National Honor Society, Symphony Orchestra, String Ensemble, and French Club. Casey plans to go into medicine, and she says that she learned that "Ancient Greek is almost as cool as physics (Thanks to Mr. Landy)."

Patrick Corrigan

Patrick Corrigan will be a freshman at the University of California--Berkley this fall. He has not decided what his major will be. While at Warren Patrick was involved in Tennis, National Honor Society, French Honor Society and French Club.

BY...BEING INVOLVED

Why do you feel it is important to stay involved in different activities?

"I think you should be involved in activities so you can meet new people: I made new friends during the wrestling and baseball season." Sean Farley, 9

"The more involved you are the more people you meet. Being involved with others helps you to know them better as well as yourself." Erika Smith, 11

"You gain knowledge and skills by participating in different activities." Holly Colson, 12

Along with first hand experience, weekly meetings are also an important part of the explorers program.

Most high school students are uncertain about their career choices for the rest of their life. Warren provides a variety of options to choose from. Teens tend to put-off the future and get wrapped up in their own reality. Explorers is one program that gives you a chance to see through different perspectives.

The explorers is a program that has been successful for the past year. "Exploring is a program that is administered and run by children themselves, adults are just there to advise. Children take care of their own responsibilities," responded Officer Curl. It is for students who would like to have a taste of what it would be like to be a police officer. The student needs to be a high school or college student between the ages of 14 to 21. Some requirements are to maintain a C average or higher in all classes and have a good moral character. Those who express interest in the law and are a responsible citizen in the community with a good reputation are encouraged to join the explorers.

> "The most important thing about goals is having one."
> Geoffrey F Abert

Students feel better about themselves by being involved with the community. They help injured people with their first aid training and some even earn recognition. Over the summer they have a practice drill which involves first aid, fire drills, and other procedures.

Restaurant Management

"I think [working in a restaurant] is a great experience, and I enjoy seeing different people everyday. It teaches me what to expect while [I'm] serving and practice techniques that I will need to know in the future." Senior Jeri Smith

Because food service has grown into the second largest industry in the US, taking this course is an excellent opportunity for anyone interested in pursuing a career in the food service industry. The food industry can accommodate a wide variety of workers and several opportunities for people with skills.

welding technology

"We are lucky in this career center to have benefits. We always have something to work with in the lab, as opposed to monotonous bookwork. [We] learn techniques of welding [and] with the guidance of our instructor [we] learn problem solving techniques to aid us in the real world." Junior Ian Rose

Brandy Campbell

To become a trained welder, you need to be able to cut and join various metals. Gas and electric equipment is necessary to follow through on the job. Understanding blueprints is a must in order to put the necessary parts together. Many students pursue welding businesses and can become self-employed.

Jenny Zigler

Broadcasting technology

"In broadcasting, I get a sense of knowledge with different equipment and it helps me practice my reading and vocal skills along with the enjoyment of calling football and basketball games, which helps me with my communication skills." Senior Brandon Jones

Radio, television, and video production are possibilities of the broadcasting technology department. This field requires hard work and creative minds. Students can become staff members for the student operated FM station, WEDM 91.1, or the school video production studio. There are numerous job opportunities in this field.

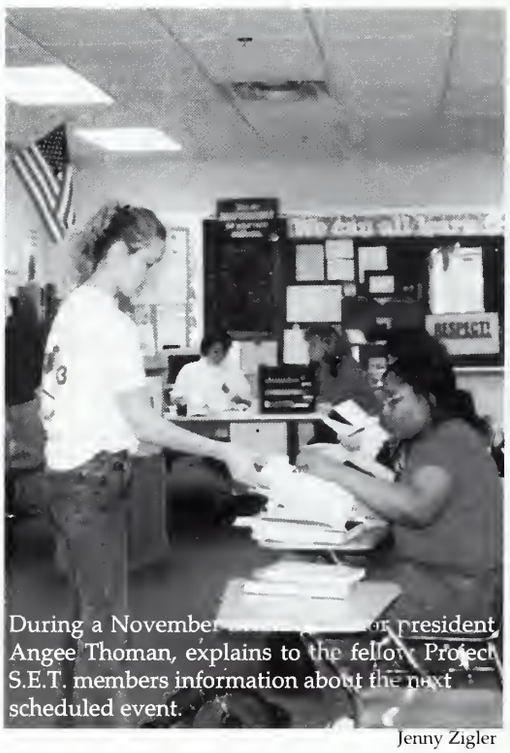
students teaching students

Student Exploratory Teaching encourages students to begin the teaching profession. "Project S.E.T. gives students an opportunity to see what educators do, to interact with elementary and middle school students, and to be involved in activities that support education and teacher appreciation," said advisor Mrs. Wolff.



During a November [illegible] president Angee Thoman, explains to the fellow Project S.E.T. members information about the next scheduled event.

Anyone is welcome to join Project S.E.T. The particular emphasis is on the recruitment of minorities, males, and physically challenged students. There's an average of 30 to 45 members in the program. The membership for the year 2000 is 30 to 40 members, a slight decrease from last year. Mrs. Luce and Mrs. Wolff are in charge of Project S.E.T., and in charge of keeping things in order.

Throughout the year, the program follows an activity and budget plan. They do things such as school-assisted child care, Valentine's Day faculty cookies, field trips to elementary schools for "shadowing," and they host a children's Christmas party. "If you are interested in kids and want to be involved with them, then you should be involved in Project S.E.T. It might even help expecting mothers so they will understand their children's behaviors in the future," said sophomore, Loreal Stum.

Project S.E.T. is a wonderful experience for the future. This program enables students to see if teaching is for them or not. "It gives me a chance to work with kids. I want to be a teacher in the future, and with exploratory teaching I get the chance to experience what I really want to do," said senior Erica Ross.

FOREIGN TO US

A TASTE OF ANOTHER CULTURE

Jenny Zigler

Jenny Zigler

Student teaching has been taken to a whole new level involving high school foreign language students and their interaction with students at selected elementary schools. Spanish teacher Mrs. Wolff coordinated a program that allows students to share their knowledge of foreign languages with the elementary school children. The participants, who teach in teams of two or three for twenty-five minutes each Wednesday, are graded by the teacher of the elementary class based on how well they are able to communicate the information to the children. The student teachers use a variety of methods, including games, parties, and crafts, which allow the elementary students to have fun while learning.

Since teaching the elementary students is not a mandatory part of the course requirements, students are given the option to stay at the high school and complete regular assignments. However, the participants all agree that it is a good opportunity to get away from the boring routines of a normal school day and still receive a grade. "It also gives students an opportunity to practice their skills in their foreign language by teaching it," stated Mrs. Wolff. The goal of the program is to not only advance the skills of the high school students, but also to encourage elementary students to study a foreign language.

op: During school, Nicole Clampitt, Melissa Cecrle, and Erica uddleston teach Pleasant Run students Spanish in a fun and ducational way.

ottom: Erica Huddleston not only teaches students, but also shows he cares by signing a student's cast. This program was available to udents who were in their fourth year of a foreign language class.

Creating A Safe School

Can you feel safe while walking the halls of WCHS? In an attempt to make the students of Warren respond in a positive way to that question, the administration took yet another step in their campaign to build respect and tolerance. The focus this year was one of antiviolence. At the beginning of the year students were asked to sign a pledge committing themselves to settle all disputes in a nonviolent way.

Although the recent increase in the amount of violence at schools across the country is partially accountable for our awareness of violence, the faculty of Warren has been relentless in its effort to bring respect back into the school environment. The morning respect messages along with the signs and banners hanging throughout the halls and classrooms serve as a reminder to both students and staff members that the campaign is ongoing. "It's all about respect and responsibility. I feel the climate here at Warren is a personal, respectful climate," said principal Tony Burchett.

While it is comforting to know that our hallways are patrolled by police officers who are always ready to help students in any type of situation, the students of Warren are learning and practicing the tolerance and respect necessary in a culturally diverse world. Realizing that someone is different from us and respecting those differences is key to keeping students safe both inside and outside of school. Mr. Burchett feels that "we can always work to improve our climate here" through various programs. However, it is the student body itself that is most directly affected by acts of violence, and therefore must take the responsibility to ensure safety not only within our school but also in the future.

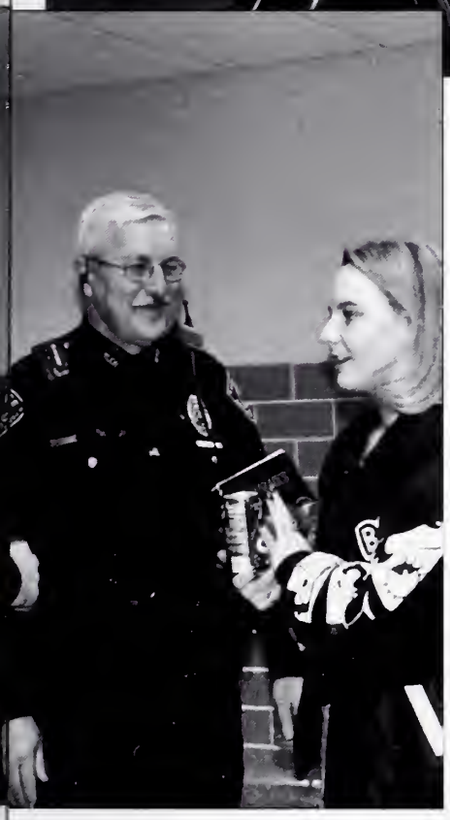
Each department was responsible for sponsoring activities and the morning respect messages during a different month as part of the Respect Campaign.



Scary Yet True

- In Littleton, Colorado, a mass shooting took place at Columbine Highschool. Fourteen students and one teacher were killed, while 23 students were left wounded. This was the worst of many school shootings around the country.
- 77% of public highschools in the U.S. report at least one crime a year
- 79% of public schools in the U.S. adopted zero tolerance for weapons
- In a year, there is an average of 10,950 physical attacks at public schools
- In a year one in ten public shools reported at least one serious violent crime

ATHLETICS AND ACADEMICS

Balancing time with both athletics and academics can be a challenge, but students still come out on top...

IHSAA RULES AND REGULATIONS

Even though some students' parents may not agree on some of the sport regulations, there must be someone to say when enough is enough. The Indiana High School Athletics Association does just that. They state how many practices high school athletes must attend along with setting academic regulations.

The Indiana High School Athletic Association is the governing body for rules and regulations in Indiana high school. Mr. Stauffer of the Warren Central athletic staff stated, "The IHSAA is recognized throughout the United States as the strongest and fairest program for high school athletes." The system was established in 1903. What started out as a regional idea of coaches and principles soon spread throughout the entire state. The chairman is chosen to serve as leader of a board of members made up of teachers, coaches, and administrators from all over Indiana. Several members from Warren Township have served with distinction.

The IHSAA is "committed to serving the students," Mr. Stauffer stated when asked the purpose of the IHSAA. To end the IHSAA puts the education of the student athlete first. The rules are clear, "promote higher educational standards." In order to play any sport a student must be enrolled and maintain passing grades in five full credit subjects. This is one governing body who wants to be sure our Hoosier athletes will be able to read their big time professional contracts.

[I have been involved with] volleyball for nine years, basketball for eleven years, and softball for thirteen years. [I am involved in athletics] because it's fun, competitive, involved with school, and I love the game. [The daily routine I follow after school is] practice for 2-3 hours, watch TV, then start my homework. Sometimes, I stay up until 1:00 or 2:00 just to get it finished. I spend 15 hours a week on athletics and 10-20 hours a week on studying; it evens out pretty well. My current GPA is 11.2. [When balancing sports and academics], sometimes I feel overwhelmed on the week days when I'm crammed with homework and I'm up until 2:00 a.m. Then I have to wake up at 5:30 on three and a half hours of sleep, and I have to go to practice already worn out. I always get my work done, but exhaustion is what kills me. My schoolwork is more important to me, but I can't start my work until I'm home from practice. Sometimes I can't finish my work because I'm too tired, but I still consider myself a good student first. If you can't make the grade, you don't play. Work hard in school and get help if you need to. First of all, being an athlete at WC is a privilege, not an obligation so certain rules and regulations should apply to the athlete. We do represent our school and we need to conduct ourselves in a way that shows we have pride in our school.

I am involved in cross country, wrestling and track. I am also involved in Warren Central's freestyle wrestling program. I have been involved in these sports since seventh grade. I am involved in athletics because I enjoy the competition. Also my teammates are not only my friends but over the years they have become somewhat of a family. This goes for my coaches as well. [The daily routine I follow after school is] right after school I head to the locker room, get dressed and get ready for a team meeting. After a tiring practice I do my homework. I can spend as much as 19 hours a week on cross country, and I spend about the same time on wrestling. I feel I spend more time on athletics that academics because there is more work to be done in sports than school. My current GPA is 9.0. I have never had problems balancing [sports and academics]. I believe that school is more important than anything is. Therefore, I make it a priority to get my studies done. The advice I would give [to a person who loves being involved in athletics and struggles with daily work] is to make a daily schedule. I find plenty of time for athletics. There is plenty of time if you are organized and disciplined. I consider myself a student first and an athlete second. First of all making the grades is required in the athletic code. Secondly, without being a good student, I could not be a good athlete. The athletic statement, in my opinion, is one of the most important rules in school. If I don't abide by this I don't do any sports. As a student athlete, I must encourage all of my teammates to follow this also.

[I have been involved with] tennis for five years and golf for seven years. [I am involved with athletics] because sports are a lot of fun and I like competing. [The daily routine I follow after school is] I go to practice until 7:00p.m. Then I come home and eat dinner. Last I do my homework which sometimes stops at 11:00p.m. I spent 13 hours a week on athletics and 10 hours a week studying. I try to make my time spent on each equal. My current GPA is 11.4. Sometimes I have trouble balancing academics and athletics. I consider myself a good student first because school will get me further in life than sports. School should always come first, but you need a little fun in your life. Try as hard as you can in school.

I'm in cross country and track: I've ran since the seventh grade. I love competition and seeing if I can go when it is gut check time. Athletics teach you a lot about yourself and your character. I also love being part of a team. I've made so many friends through my seasons of distance running and. my teammates are like brothers to me. [The daily routine I follow is.] if it is cross country season. I have morning practice twice a week at 6:00 a.m.. and I run for an easy four or five miles. I usually wake up at about 5:15 a.m.. drink coffee. and do some homework. I usually get to school early at like 6:30 a.m.. so I can finish homework I didn't do the night before. Then I have school then afterwards afternoon practice. After practice I shower and eat dinner. By then it's about 7:30 p.m.. I take a little time to relax and then start my homework. I usually spend a couple of hours on athletics and anywhere from one to two hours on homework each day. It all evens out. as long as I keep my grades up and stay in shape. My current GPA is 11.8. I don't really have problems balancing athletics and academics. It really helps that I don't have a job because to balance both take up all my time. You have to prioritize what is most important to you. time management is the key. If you can use your time well. then it's easy to balance. I like to think I put academics first because they are what is most important. Athletics give the athlete a sense of honor and that comes through hard-work and sacrifice. As an athlete at WC. you sign a code to live by and you have a responsibility to abide by it as a student leader.

Right now. I play basketball. volleyball. and softball. I have played basketball for about 8 years. softball for 10 years. and volleyball for 6 years. I have also played soccer for 9 years. but decided not to play this due to volleyball. Ever since I was little. I liked being involved in something. Sports seem to be natural to me. It helps me to be more self-disciplined. I also like meeting new people. Everyday after the bell rings I talk to my friends for a few minutes. go to my locker. and go to get ready for practice. After practice I go home. do my homework. and eat dinner. Sometimes I go to another practice. If not. I talk on the phone. I guess it seems like I spend a lot more time on athletics. but when you add it compared to all the time at school it probably evens out. I really never have problems balancing [academics and athletics]. I guess the hardest time is when you have away games and don't get home until 10:30. I would tell someone to get as much work done at school as possible. Sometimes it's hard. but it can be done if you stay focused. I really don't consider myself first at either [being an athlete or a good student]. I put the same amount of work into both of them and feel like they're both very important.

I do my homework and it's also my free time. and finally 10:00 I go to sleep because I need all the rest I can get. On practice days. I spend about two to three hours on a sport. On game days. it's a little longer due to bus travel. I try to spend at least an hour on homework each night. I feel like athletics and academics balance each other out because I because I know in order to stay on the team I have to do well in school. My current GPA is 11.2 and I'm ranked number six.

Freshman year, I was involved in varsity soccer, track and freshman basketball. Sophomore year, I took a break but this year I played varsity soccer for school. I am also involved with indoor soccer during the winter and spring soccer for a traveling team. During the summer we do tournaments. I have been laying soccer since I was 4 years old. Playing sports relieves some stress for me, and it is also and efficient fun way to keep in shape. I think the best part about sports is being on a team and having fun with your friends. As soon as school gets out, I get my books and equipment and head out to the locker room. Then practice lasts until about 5:30. Then I go home, unless I have errands to run, and eat dinner. I start my homework, then before I go up to bed I take a shower. Any extra time I spend talking on the phone. The next day the cycle starts all over again. Athletics is usually every day for about 2 hours. On game days, I usually don't get home until about 8:30 to 9:00. On weekends we have games on Saturday and Sunday. I usually slack on my academics, because once I get home I am pretty tired, and I just want to sleep. I try to get it done during school the next day. My GPA is 11.8. When I get home, sometimes I just get overwhelmed because I have so much to do and I'm so tired. Usually I just make myself do what needs to be done, and I just have to deal with being tired. I think being involved in a sport is a privilege, and the students should have enough responsibility to balance sports and studies.

[My daily routine after school is] go to practices, lift weights, and do drills. I spend about twenty hours a week on athletics and I don't really study so there isn't any balancing to do. I feel like I don't need to study that often. My current GPA is 11.5. I remember thinks well so I don't really have problems balancing athletics and academics. [The advice I would give to someone who likes being involved in athletics but struggles in school is to] take a little more time in preparing for exams and major projects in school. Education is more important than athletics. I consider myself an athlete first because I need to work on becoming a better athlete and I'm not having too much trouble in school.

DREAMS AND Nightmares

In the middle of the night, while you were sleeping, your mind began to wander away.

• Seth Harrison

Dreams, the stuff of Sigmund Freud, Nightmare on Elm Street, and a trip to Oz. People dream, usually in the time of sleep called REM (rapid eye movement). Dreams are unconscious thoughts making their presence known. They are 45% auditory, pretty noisy. They are usually visual, sometimes painfully so, and stark emotions are present unlike when we are awake and in control. The senses of smell, color, depth are often next to nonexistent; although studies link a specific smell to reoccurrence of dreams. Dreams are the inner story trying to be told.

Freud used dreams to help the troubled soul. He looked beyond the surface to find the hidden demons. Unfortunately most of what Freud found was based on a suppressed societies' small views. Sleep research today tries to use dreams as a way to monitor and predict the kind of sleep that best helps the body refuel. There are ways to interpret dreams. Different symbols can mean different things. For example, a dream about parents can symbolize authority and love. If a person dreams about WCHS, it might mean the person is reluctant to break old ties. Of course a dream about kissing can mean anything from a token of affection to a minor illness. A dream can be anything, and can be believed by anyone.

Dreams are our paths to the future. All of them do not take place while we sleep. To dream is to believe, to ignore a dream is to close a door of opportunity. To dream is to enter the next millennium.

Interpretations of your dreams

Bare Feet: new experiences with the opposite sex
Being Dead: you're recovering from illness
Being Nude: a stroke of money or luck
Camera: warning you to be careful what you say to people
Candy: you'll be happy really soon, even if you don't believe it
Classroom Desk: satisfaction in matters that concern the dreamer
Donkey: love affair
Food: indicates a happy family
Pit: must overcome an obstacle
Smile: receive an award that you weren't expecting
Tree: love affairs and friendships
Ugly Baby: someone that you trust will deceive you
Wilted Flowers: warning you not to be big headed

•Please note that interpretations may vary on how you felt during the dream. Interpretations are based only on theory.

Senior Adam Fisher dreams of being naked before giving a speech. Being naked in a public place is a common dream among many people. Although this dream may seem embarrassing, it often symbolizes a stroke of money.

Of the 2915 students at Warren Central...

- 1813 students attend the regular 7 hours of school.
- 122 seniors are participants in school to work.
- Around 900 students participate in competitive sports after school.
- On average 80 students are assigned detention every night.
- 85 to 100 students are assigned to Saturday School. Typically only two-thirds show up.

Where do the late hours go?

• Jordan Smith

"Attention students and staff, bus 39 is running behind today. Those students will have a bright green pass. You have one minute until the late bell, one minute until the late bell. Thank you, and have a great day." And so the day began.

For most, the day was the usual seven hours long. Then there were those seniors that chose to leave a few hours early. On the other hand, many talented Warriors stayed after school and gave up part of their social life in order to support their school in the area of sports. There were students giving up their Saturday to come to school for Saturday school or even to attend a student council activity. The hours spent at our school were various in more ways than one.

> "I feel like I spend a lot more time at school than I do at home with family and friends."
> -Kari Glazier 11th

There were hours spent on homework and cramming for tests. Teachers could have given enough homework to last the time of an entire football game. With a full schedule, homework can last until the late hours of the night. Some students felt overloaded by school and activities. "I'm very involved, and cross country, track, and orchestra require a lot of time and dedication. With these activities, the only extra time I have is barely enough for eating, sleeping, and homework," says junior Amber Manriquez.

Many students were able to be involved in after school activities and not worry so much about home work. "I do my homework during class," says senior Jason Pease. Although many teachers did not allow time to do work in class, students were able to find ways to do it.

The school population still managed to work in a social life after the requirements of school. Almost anyone could find someone from Warren participating in various activities virtually anywhere in the city. Many teens spent time with their friends and families going to nearby attractions, or even just going to a movie.

Students were not the only ones coming in early or staying late. Numerous teachers came in before 7:40 to give tests to students who had missed a class. Some teachers also gave up part of their evening social lives to coach a sport. The entire school was very grateful for the time put in by these individuals.

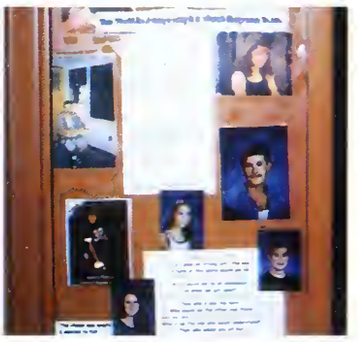
The student parking lot had 450 parking spaces for the juniors and seniors who earned the right to drive. Many students still complained of the long walk to the school and the difficulty of finding a parking spot in the mornings.

The Warren basketball team was a group that spent many hours working after school. Team players huddled during time outs, but the last thing on their minds was the time they were spending there.



Lockers. Every one had one, and most everyone used them. Lockers were the places in the school where the students could express their individuality.

a state of slumber

•Seth Harrison

It's the one activity that everyone has to do whether they choose to or not. Sleep. People lose sleep over getting enough sleep. Teenagers are the most in need of the healing power of sleep yet they are often the group who gets the least amount. Experts are now recommending that school days start later and go longer into the afternoon. The statistics show teenagers lack the maturity to deal with the stress and emotions that come with the lack of sleep. Is it no wonder tempers fly, tears flow, and snores are heard during class? Sleep is needed all year not just during ISTEP.

Eighty percent of people walk around suffering from sleep deprivation. That amounts to a loss of billions in jobs and production. Everyone has certain sleep patterns. REM, rapid eye movement, has been studied for years. During this period our brain is most active, and our sleep is the deepest. REM is when people get the best sleep; it usually occurs early in the sleep process. Everyone dreams, it is just hard to remember what was dreamt. Dreams have long been thought to be insight into the hidden self. Dreams reveal our inner thoughts and fantasies or so Freud thought. Dreams are the brain's way of replaying our thoughts with pictures.

Sleep is vital to the survival of the species. Sleeping less than 6 and a half hours a night can actually shorten your life. So sleep guys.

tips for sleeping

- stay away from caffeine after 12 P.M..
- take a warm bath
- avoid bright lights in the evening
- don't eat heavy meals before bedtime, instead try a light snack
- listen to the radio quietly
- keep your bedroom cool and dark
- keep a regular bedtime
- don't concentrate too hard on falling asleep
- concentrate on something tiresome, such as sheep

fact VS fiction

- fact: going to another room can help you sleep
- fiction: alcohol helps you sleep
- fact: snoring can be harmful
- fiction: taking more naps helps you sleep at night
- fact: older and younger people need the same amount of sleep
- fiction: insomnia is not caused by chronic use of sleeping pills
- fact: regular wake up times help one to feel more rested

"Excuse this interruption for a few end of the day announcements. Members of NHS must have their point forms turned in by the end of the day on Friday. Cheerleading practice has been canceled for tonight. Thank you and have a safe and pleasant day."

So the day ends. Finally, it is time to...finish your essay?

Although many students go home or participate in after school sports, there are still students who stay after for academic reasons. Students who do not have access at home to word processors, the internet, encyclopedias, or other resources can stay after school and use the school's materials.

Jenny Zigler

Junior Charese Chaney and others work after school in the library. Students who did not have access to a computer at home could go there during a study hall or after school.

On average four to five people came to the writing lab after school, but this number increased as teachers assigned research projects. The lab was open from after school until four o'clock each day, and any student who wanted to be admitted had to have a pass from their teacher. After school was not the only time a student could have used the writing lab; it was also available before school, during study halls, and during classes when the teacher signed up to use it.

During our elementary years we were told that great advances would be made in technology by the year 2000. By then there had been great advances, but not quite the ones we had expected. We have managed to advance beyond the fictitious stone age family, the Flintstones, yet we have not surpassed the twenty-first century family, the Jetsons.

- We do not have feet-powered stone cars, but the cars we own do not fly.
- Dinosaurs did not exist as pets, or anything besides bones. Robots made their advance in the twenty-first century, but they still were not our 'Rosy' little housekeepers.
- Slabs of beef the size of the VW Beetle were no longer on the fast food menu, but the meal-in-a-pill had not been perfected.
- A porcupine hairbrush was the way to style hair in the stone age, but the automatic hairstyling machines were still a thing of the future.

Don't Look Away

Chris White had the opportunity that the majority of high school students do not get. He had the experience of being able to sample his dream profession.

For two years White had his own radio show through the broadcasting classes he took at Warren. He called his show the Oreo Show. "My nickname is Oreo because of my race, but I don't take offense," says White. He tapes each of his shows so he can send them to other radio stations in hopes of future jobs.

White plays mostly alternative on the Oreo show. He includes a lot of hip hop, punk, and thrash.

White says that he did not really do anything to prepare for his show; he just listened to the responses of what his listeners were saying. His show always supports Warren's sport's teams. It also supports many local bands.

Chris White are regurally taped and send out to other radio stations for feedback. Often time he had co-hosts sit in and contribute to what was happening during the show.

Before they became Mixed Emotions, Trae Dearman, Rashad Howard, Philip Reed, and Adrienne Jenkins were dancing solo. They joined together, and came up with the name Mixed Emotions, "basically because we have a girl in the group." Later three others, James Reed, Jason Jones, and Lawrence Webb, joined the group as other dancers.

During the two years that they were together Mixed Emotions had performed at school related events, church, local talent shows, and even at skating rinks. Most of the time they dance to Hip Hop, R & B music, and Gospel.

One would have found this small group of Warren students practicing together two and a half to three hours each time they got together; usually every Tuesday, Thursday, and sometimes on Saturday.

While Rashad Howard, James Reed, and Trae Deermon practice their dance routine in the middle of the G hallway, Philip Reed, Jason Jones, and Lawrence Webb watch from the background. These members of mixed emotions practiced their routine until they got it just right.

Don't Look Away was a punk/trash/classical rock band that got its name from two sources. The original members had played with many different bands, and it seemed to them that the other bands they had performed with did not really care about the music. The name was also taken from the title of the Face to Face song "Don't Turn Away."

Mike Pike played guitar for more than 11 years, and had a small studio in his house where he worked with other talented musicians. Pike and John Parker, guitarist, began playing together as often as they could. Their dream was to start a band. They met Nathan Cooley after four years of being together,and he proved to be a reliable bass guitarist. The group was always looking for more chances to play for an audience. Ross New, although not a member of the band, sang for the trio during Warren's Senior Finales. The majority of the time Pike sang for the group.

. . . On Individuals

As you walked through the halls of Warren Central, you saw 2,838 individuals. 2,838 people with different ideas in their heads. Right then, there were 2,838 futures sitting at desks, eating lunch, using the Pythagorean Theorem, and talking to friends when they were supposed to be listening to the teacher. Each one of the 2,838 was different, but combined they formed one entity-Warren Central.

HOW MUCH WOULD YOU PAY...

Josiah Knox

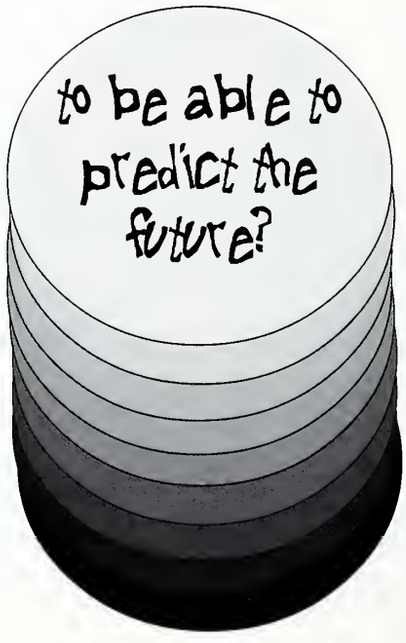
"I'd pay as much as I had in my pocket, so I'd know what to do and what not to do."

Tricia Crow Dog

"I wouldn't pay anything because it would not be any fun if I already knew what the future was going to be like."

Ian Nichols

"I'd pay $20 because I could make all my money back charging other people to tell them their futures."



"I would pay up to a maximum of $100 because I really want the future to be a surprise."

Kassie Gumerson

"I wouldn't pay anything to know my future because I think it should be left unknown."

Jenna Survant

"I wouldn't pay to predict the future. I would want others to leave the future to be discovered by youth and inventors."

Christina McConnell

HOW MUCH WOULD YOU PAY...

Kelli Bailey

"I wouldn't pay because if it was meant to happen, I wouldn't have to pay."

Matt Fielder

"I would not pay because I don't want to be famous."

Natalie Stenzoski

"I wouldn't pay anything. I think being world famous should come from natural talent. If you give your heart into something, fame and money and everything else will follow."

"I wouldn't pay anything because I would want to become world famous for my actions and achievements, not my money."

Christy Humphries

"I wouldn't pay to become world famous because then I would be famous for paying someone for my fame and not for any of my accomplishments."

Kirsten Meid

HOW MUCH WOULD YOU PAY...

Justin Scott

"I'd pay all the money I have so I could understand what people are thinking about me."

Kyle Krause

"I would pay a lot because I want to know what people really think about me."

Brandon Elam

"Millions. Then I would know exactly what everybody is thinking."

"I'd pay up to half of what I had in my bank account because if I knew what others were thinking, I could help them in some situations."

Gabriel Bassey

"I'd pay $500 so I can know what they think about me or anybody else."

Chris Windham

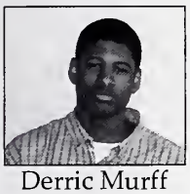
"I'd pay $20 so I knew if someone is actually thinking about me."

Jessica Londakos

HOW MUCH WOULD YOU PAY...

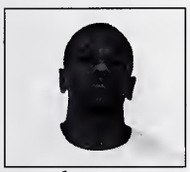
Greg Schildmeier

" I'd pay $75. It's not a big deal to make the decisions."



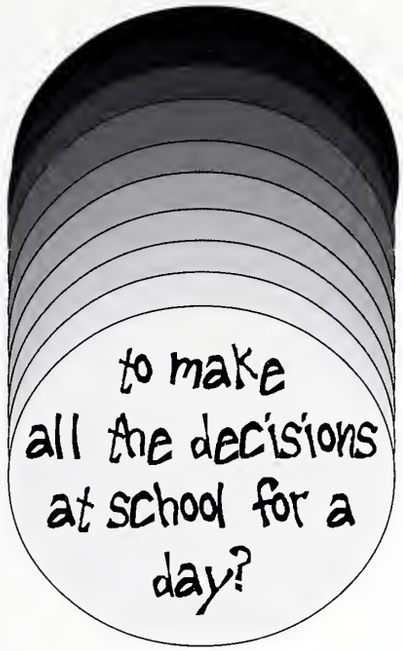
Derric Murff

"Nothing. It's stupid for just one day. One year is more like it."



Josh Harvey

"I'd pay one million dollars, because it would be tight to tell everybody what to do."



"I'd pay $20 so that I could let people know my decisions and how I feel."

Sharnae Duncan

"I'd pay two million dollars because I'd like to fire anyone who I didn't like."

HOW MUCH WOULD YOU PAY...

Kemyetta Bellamy

"I couldn't pay anything because I should be responsible for the consequences of all I do."

Sarah Moudy

"I don't think there is anyway you could pay anything to be free from guilt. An infinite amount of money wouldn't do that."

Allison Straud

"I don't do anything I should fell guilty about."

" Nothing because guilt is valuable; it teaches lessons."

Sarah Routin

"I'd pay a pretty large amount because I know I've done a lot wrong."

Kellie Schneider

"I wouldn't pay anything because if I'm going to feel bad, I'll feel bad, and if I paid money to stop my guilt, I'd probably feel worse."

Brian Schmidt

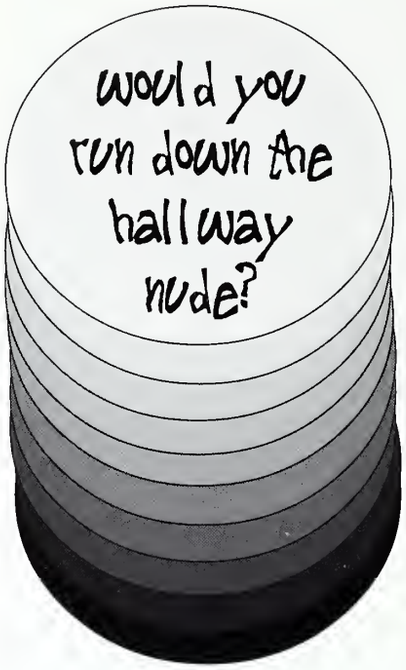
"Yes, so I could look at that one special spot on the wall/locker and say, 'That's my prints!'"

Erica Huddelston

"Oh, yeah! I would enjoy a nice streaking. But, I'd have to invite some friends, too, so we could all be wild together."



"I would because I don't give a cookie about what people think, and it would be really cool!"

Nicole Musser

"No. No one would ever know. What would the point be?"

Nathan Cooley

"Of course. You get the thrill of doing something dangerous and forbidden, and the security that no one would ever know so you can't get in trouble or be ridiculed."

FOCUS

. . . On teamwork

With each sport came a different group of players with different attitudes and hopes, but one goal united them. . .to win. Each player had a personal goal to make varsity, to start, or to even win state, but one goal united them. . .to win. Every sport required teamwork, motivation, and practice, all to make that extra stride, stroke, pitch, or burst of speed necessary. . .to win.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

The fourth ranked boys cross country team didn't get to where they are now without giving 100 percent in practice. The boys ran seven days a week, rain or shine. It could have been 30 degrees outside or even 90, but they always gave their all. Until sectionals, they ran up to 50 miles in just one week. Every day they did two sets of 30 push ups and 60 sit ups. Every week they had two extra-hard practices, which are not easy for even our Warriors. The dedication that the Warriors put into practice is what made them one of the top teams in the state.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

The lady warriors cross country team's main goal was improvement this season. With all the practice they went through that goal was accomplished with no doubt in their minds. Strenuous practices both in mornings and after school built up not only their physical strength but also their mental strength. There was no set amount of miles to run, sit ups, or push ups to do every practice. The coaches decided the amount day by day. On average, there were almost 200 sit ups and 50 push ups a day. On occasion, at the beginning of practice, the girls would talk about their goals and how they could improve their times.

Practice can start anytime from six in the morning and not end until every problem has been fixed. Pre- season starts in early June and lasts until the season is over. While most of the city is still asleep, some members come in for weight training at six, and another group comes in at eight. When the first game came around, the football team was ready to go. "We watch the tapes that our opponents give to us and study what they do and figure out what we can do to win," stated head coach Dave Shelbourne. Practices work on individual, small group, and team levels.

what we see is perfected
Behind the scenes

These ladies were serious about the season. They were ready from day one to let other teams know what they were capable of. Practice was the major factor in their success. It would not seem like the girls were in the middle of a practice if you were to walk by the gym. They just looked like a team having fun and playing against each other. If Mr. Hagist saw someone doing something wrong, he wouldn't just tell them how to correct it, he would show them how they could improve the move until they caught on. Other teammates would also help by giving advice on how to fix whatever technique was being worked on. Their season was great because of all the hard work and improvement made during practice.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

For the boy's soccer team, practices were crucial in determining how the team was going to play the next day or in the upcoming game. The boy's team practiced on everything from defense to offense. There was always room for improvement. Practice was ruled by performance, whether it was hard running due to a loss, or drills based on offense due to the lack of goals or scoring. Some days Coach Gary Roberts would separate the "men" from the "boys" with drills based on hustling to get first touch on the ball, or trying to keep possession of the ball without giving it to an opponent. Some practices consisted of scrimmages to work on ball control or possession. Every scrimmage was a way to help the team mold together and put to use the drills they had been practicing.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

Sometimes the most tactical things in the game of soccer need to be worked on. The girls soccer team practiced everything from ball control skills basics, to drills that emphasized who had pure guts. The intensity to improve was matched with the intensity to win in a live game. Every drill and scrimmage was not only aimed for improvement, but also understanding. To understand the game and the way it is played was a pivotal part of how the team won or lost. "I never underestimate what we can accomplish during practice; it is important to get as much out of practice as possible." Said Coach Roberts, "I tell the girls, you play the way you practice."

Players like Darcie Davis, Jessica Lascola, and Rachel Seibel were the players that got everyone motivated since it was their last chance to see the team succeed. In practice it was up to these seniors, and many more upperclassmen, to get the team focused and ready to go every practice. In practice the team would play through holes to understand some real-life situations they might encounter during a game. Then coach Darko would step in and teach how to get out of that particular situation.

What we see is perfected Behind the scenes

The boys' basketball team did not win the county tournament on prayers and fate alone. They spent many hours in the gym, in the weight room, and at home perfecting each lay-up, jump-shot, and three-point play that would be needed in a game. In practice, they spent time warming up and working on weaknesses in preparation for the next game. They also separated into teams and had their own scrimmage games. When basketball season is over, some members play on other school or league teams to stay in control of their game.

what we see is perfected

Behind the scenes

The lady Warrior basketball team's main concern this season was to improve practice. Like many other sports, the girls practiced Monday through Friday, but they also practiced almost every Saturday morning. Practice began either at the end of school after school until 5:30, or if the gyms were occupied they would return to school at 5:00 and practice until 7:30. For the first 15 to 20 minutes, the ladies warmed up by doing sit ups, push ups, and stretching. Most of the remaining time would consist of running and different types of drills such as stations and shoot passing drills. A lot of time was focused on playing normal 5 on 5 plays and learning new strategies to improve their season's record.

To be a competitor in swimming in the state of Indiana one must train hard. The Warriors did just that. Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, the team would train for four hours. Included in that four hours was an hour of weight-training, calisthenics, plymetrics, and running, beginning at six in the morning. These morning practices were a big contributor to the success during the season. On Tuesday and Thursday the 3-5:30 practices consisted strictly of swimming. Each practice changed daily in length, intensity, focus, and goal.

In all sports, practice determines how well a team competes. The ladies swim team realized the impact practice makes. The lady Warriors really buckled down during practice. The girls practiced Monday through Friday from the end of school until 5:30. Coach Corsaro had them work on their strokes and endurance strength during most of the practice hours. Towards the beginning of the season, the ladies had a 12 hour practice so they could get to know their teammates better. At the end of practice Coach Corsaro would usually tell the ladies, "Always race yourselves. Don't go into a meet just trying to beat your opponent. Try to beat your best time instead."

The emotion of winning lingers as another day of practice arrives. But to the 14 varsity wrestlers, practice isn't just mandatory, it is the chance to get better; and for the jv and freshman, it is a learning process. The warm-ups include jogging, stretches, jumping jacks, push-ups and sit-ups. The team then does drills to practice opponent moves; for a break between drills, the wrestlers run. The men are always on the move. After drills is another session of "live" wrestling focusing on conditioning and endurance. Unlike other sports, the coaches participate with the wrestlers as if to say, "If we can do it, you can do it." As the practice winds to an end, what better time for a couple more sets of push-ups, sit-ups, and then to test how much "heart" they have, sprints.

Behind the scenes

It isn't easy to do what the girls gymnastic team does in meets. In practice they work hard to perfect all the different routines. The girls work on the bars, floor, vault, and beam. Practices for the girls last three long hours every day after school. They spend a lot of time stretching their entire body, and they do other warm ups, such as jumps and splits, to help prepare for a practice or competition. The end of practice is when it gets difficult because that's when the conditioning takes place. Conditioning consists of many different things like sit-ups, pull-ups, and push-ups.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

A huge controversy at many schools is should cheerleading be considered a sport? The Warren Central cheerleaders have proven to many students and faculty that they spend as much time, if not more, practicing for competition and games year-round. Like many other sports, the cheerleaders began practice right after the school year ended, and they competed throughout the summer at various college camps. When school resumed, the ladies practiced five days a week to learn and perfect as many as 60 cheers. Practice would begin with stretches and tumbling. The girls would then spend over an hour just practicing cheers.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

For the varsity baseball team, practices are the only way to be sure that problem areas are taken care of, weaknesses are improved, and the team keeps a winning mindset. They go over previous games, upcoming opponents, and what needs to be fixed in order to ensure a victory. Most of the time is spent working together, however sometimes the in-fielders separate from the out-fielders to work on the different positions. When practice ends, the players take what they covered and put it to work for the rest of the season.

what we see is perfected

Behind the scenes

The Lady Warriors' softball team started the season strong. From day one the girls were learning new plays or strengthening their skills. Unless a game was scheduled, the ladies practiced everyday, Monday through Friday, from 3:45 until 5:30 and sometimes longer. Practice began with running two times around the softball field, and then stretching for 10 to 15 minutes. Next was a throw around with a partner for 10 to 20 minutes to warm up their arms. After warming up, the ladies would practice by having their coach hit to them. The girls would have to get the softball to first base as quick as possible. With strong, productive practices, the ladies are sure to have a great season for another year.

what we see is perfected

Everyday at 3:15, over 100 young men step into the locker room and prepare themselves to be better athletes. After a word of wisdom from two-time state coach of the year, Mr. Dennis McNulty, the boy's are ready to begin practice. They slap the sign shaped like the state of Indiana that hangs by the door which has the label "IT'S ALL ABOUT THIS." After the senior captains lead the team warm up lap, stretches, push-ups and sit-ups, the boys break up into their events and work with their event coaches. Every practice the goal is to improve on anything from speed, endurance, strength, form, and technique.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

On a typical day after school you could have walked over to the track and seen about 35 girls track members practicing for the next meet. There were many different "specialist" coaches on hand to help each part of the team develop their skills. Practices normally consisted of a good stretch out and plenty of running. There was a strong sense of leadership at practices due to the amount of experience and talent on the mainly-veteran team. "This is probably one of the hardest working teams we've had in the last four years. They take our practices seriously," said senior Tamara Crabtree.

Behind the scenes

The boys' golf team prepares one swing at a time, using practices as a "breather." This team is young but experienced, and plays with a lot of emotion. Practice is also a chance to move up in team rankings. Every person is mature enough to prepare himself for the next match, whether it is working on short games, putting, or hitting long irons. "Golf is a game of mental toughness. I can't go out, coach these kids, and tell them what to do. Most of the time, it comes down to whether they execute what they know needs to be done or not," says Coach Darko.

what we see is perfected Behind the scenes

The girls tennis team starts practice with two long laps around the student parking lot and then group stretching takes place. The girls are then paired up and warm up by hitting the ball back and forth. They work on specific parts of the game such as serving, working close to the net, backhands, lobs, and overheads. The tennis team does drills to help improve their skills in different areas, such as footwork drills and agressor/defender drills. They also use the ball machine to work on placement. An important tip the girls learned was placement before power.

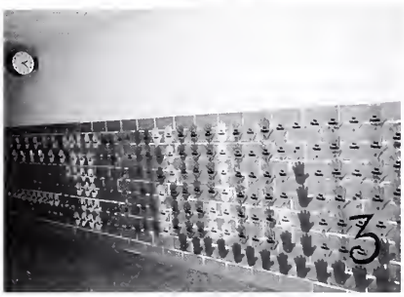
Top 5 . . . Ways Student Council Helps Our School and Community.

1 Seven year old James Wilce shows off the Christmas presents Ms. McCormick's tenth period class bought him. The Children's Christmas party pairs elementary school children with classes who raise money and buy them gifts.

2 Going for the Gold is an orientation program for incoming freshmen. Held during the summer, it prepares the students for high school with seminars about academics, athletics, and student life.



3 Student Council raises money for various charities such as March of Dimes and Riley Hospital by selling Helping Hands and Walker Shoes. They have raised over $1500 for these charities this year alone.

4 Warren Central student, Heather Colledge, tutors Stonybrook student, Amber Hilliard. Student Council helps to encourage and mentor middle school students through tutoring programs.

5 Junior Jennifer Lucas bags groceries at a local Cubs Foods grocery store to raise money for Riley Hospital. This is one of many programs Student Council members help by volunteering their time and energy outside of the school day.

Senior Mandy Johnson focuses her attention on the music being played during the Warren World of Music concert. Concentration was a key factor in learning, memorizing, and performing the music well.

Under the heat of the sun, junior Brittney Stuart leads a group of color guard members in practicing a flag routine. Long hours of summer and after school practices prepared the guard for their season of competitions.

Greg Henning, Zach Ballard, and Jason Justice, members of the Gold Brigade marching band, concentrate on their music and marching sequence during one of their hot, August practices. The band practiced long hours in order to perfect their performance in contest and at half time shows.

Color guard members Hillary Rogers, Dawn Rempe, and Suzanne Croft take to the field for their appearance at a home football game. Along with competing in contests and putting on shows, the guard and marching band were regular performers during halftime.

turning heads

Jenny Zigler

WHILE MOST OF US SPENT OUR SUMMER out of the heat except for those few seconds walking from our air conditioned house to our air conditioned car, the Gold Brigade marching band and color guard were out practicing under the heat of the sun day after day. Each day brought hours of practice in preparation for the competitive season that fall and the beginning of school would bring. Through the competitions the band and guard remained contenders, ranking with the best in the state and proving their ability to contest judges. "Our greatest accomplishment as a whole was getting 7th place at regional contest and being only six tenths of a point away from making it to State Finals," said junior Hope Vantreese, who also received Best Drum Major award at the contest.

Jenny Zigler

The color guard faced the difficult obstacle of overcoming tradition in order to be a competitive factor in the Indiana High School Color Guard Association. Senior captain Suzanne Croft stated, "As a whole our biggest accomplishment was going from an undemanding show my freshman year and not ever placing, to my senior year having a very demanding show and being in the top five in the state." The guard continued to progress, improving their scores each week. Their high scores and difficult show took the guard to the state winter guard finals where they placed seventh. Whether the guard was performing with the marching band as entertainment during half time of a football game or competing against high ranking color guards from around the state during their winter season, the girls were constantly striving to put on a better show for their audience and judges.

Concentrating on the music, sophomore Tara Benz and junior Libby Jay play at the Warren World of Music concert. The concert brought students from all over the township to the PAC for a day of performances by the orchestra, choir, and band.

Junior Jason Montgomery performs for the audience during the choir's Christmas concert. The Christmas concert was just one of several concerts and contests the choir participated in.

The HiLites incorporate their Christmas songs with well-learned dances to put on an entertaining show for their audience. Their time in class along with many evening practices accounted for their ability to perform well.

Singing "Broadway Baby" from their competition show, the HiLites take a break from their schedule of contests to perform at Warren World of Music. Costume changes and props added variety to their show along with choreographed dances the girls had to learn.

CHANGES WERE A KEY PART IN both the choir and orchestra programs this year. The beginning of the school year brought a new leader of the HiLites choir, resulting in numerous changes in the expectations and performance of the choir. The new leadership also brought a new found sense of determination and motivation among the girls. "Mrs. Shetter means business and wants only the best from us. As a whole our greatest accomplishment was performing an awesome show and being entertaining, and I think us doing well at contest proves that. We've come a long way since the beginning of the year in every aspect that it takes to be the best performer," said senior Heather Wildrick.

Jenny Zigler

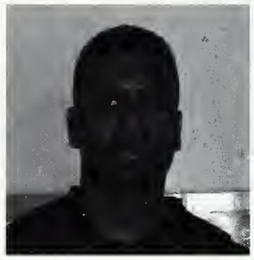
The symphony orchestra also underwent a dramatic change when their director, Mr. Beckley, took an extended medical leave halfway through the school year, leaving the orchestra without a conductor. After several days of guest conductors, Mrs. Vaughn was introduced as the new director. Mrs. Vaughn came into the orchestra program having only taught for three years. However, two out of those three years, her orchestra made it to state. "Hopefully we are as lucky so we can show everyone how great the players are and not just the teacher," said senior Kim Smith.

Joni Willan

Although adjustments had to be made, the HiLites and the symphony orchestra used the changes to their advantage, strengthening their groups. "The most difficult obstacle that any choir has ever faced is getting along, which has been extremely difficult in the past. This year we've gotten along great," stated Wildrick. As the choir and orchestra look to next year under their new leadership, it is certain they will continue to evolve as performers and grow as groups.

BURTON GUDE, 12

"My favorite part of Reader's Theatre is working on plays and being as silly as I want to be. It is a very fun and energetic class. Also, you get to make new friends and perform in front of more than 2,000 to 3,000 people, but most important you get to act stupid."



Jenny Zigler

HOLLY DOWNARD, 11

"I had heard from a lot of friends that Reader's Theatre is a fun class, I also like to act so I decided to join. I love to see the looks on the children's faces after you do a show; it makes all of our efforts worthwhile. It is a great place to express yourself and since so many perform at once, it helped a lot of people with stage fright."

KELLI MAXWELL, 12

"This class gives students confidence and courage. They learn teamwork and interacting with others. Our 'All School Convos' are a day of fun. You get to be with friends and do what you've been practicing for. This year, though, the 'Final Fling' will be my favorite. It's my last show and I'll miss my Reader's Theatre family."

ASHLEE WILSON, 12

"I decided to join RT because I like to act and be myself. My favorite part is going to the different schools and seeing the little kids and how much fun they have. Ms. B. is a wonderful teacher who has a great heart and loves her students."

In front of an audience is where some of Warren's students knew they belonged. They had the ability to make people laugh and, if the skit called for it, even bring out a few tears. Whether it was performing at an elementary school or in the Cabaret, the members of Reader's Theatre and the Thespian Society were always. . .

(above) Performing at Coffeehouse Theater, Ashley Brand, Latrice Owens, and Jennifer Nelson act out "Cinderella Wore Combat Boots." Coffeehouse Theater consisted of several one act plays, each lasting about 15 minutes.

"In a way, Dracula was a challenging experience for me because I had to make my own costume. I was a vixen who was always hungry for blood, so after my hard work in sewing my dress, we had to cover it in fake blood! The best part is having gone to rehearsals for the long hours and finally performing for a live audience and then knowing it was worth it."

"In Little Shop of Horrors I played the character Orin Scrivello, D.D.S., a psycho dentist who enjoys inflicting pain on people and sniffing nitrous oxide. My experience in Little Shop of Horrors was nothing but fun."

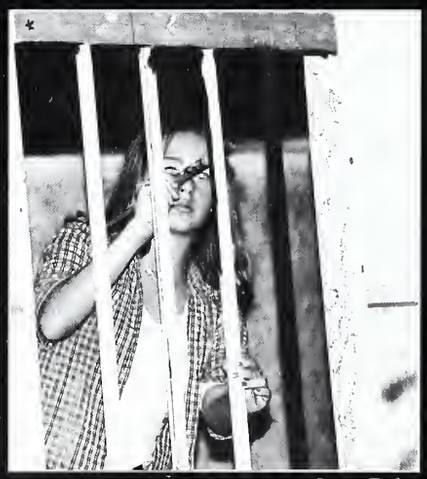
"I played the interviewer in Little Shop of Horrors. My part was small, but I really liked it. I tried out for Little Shop because I really like acting, and I figured this is something I'll be able to remember for a long time. This was the first time I've ever been in something like this, and it was a lot of fun."

Backstage Pass



Jenny Zigler

(above) Preparing for an upcoming show, a stage crew member puts a finishing coat of paint on the set. Students were also responsible for operating the light and sound systems at the various shows done in the PAC.

(right) Several stage crew members work together to construct part of the set for Dracula. The stage crew spent long hours at rehearsals preparing for the shows.

A hush falls over the audience as they sit in anticipation of "Little Shop of Horrors." The dim lights hitting the stage reveal a shadowy figure silently sliding across the stage. The majority of the audience sits oblivious to him being there, yet his presence is crucial. As the actors on stage continue their dialogue, the set rotates revealing the inside of the shop the characters had just been standing outside. The shadowy figure has completed his first task of that evening's performance and now lies hidden behind the set, waiting for his next cue.

If you've ever wondered what goes into a performance in the PAC, the actors are just the beginning - ask a member of stage crew, the people behind the scenes. Stage crew is responsible for designing and building the sets, operating the light and sounds systems, and memorizing numerous cues for stage changes. They are at every rehearsal, every performance, and spend countless hours working after school and on the weekends. Sophomore Josh Marrow stated that "being able to work behind the scenes, working with actors, and working with props" was what made him decide to join the stage crew. Despite the long hours that go into making a show happen, the stage crew is rewarded for their hard work each time they are able to sneak a peek from behind the curtain and see the auditorium filled with people eager to see the show they helped create.

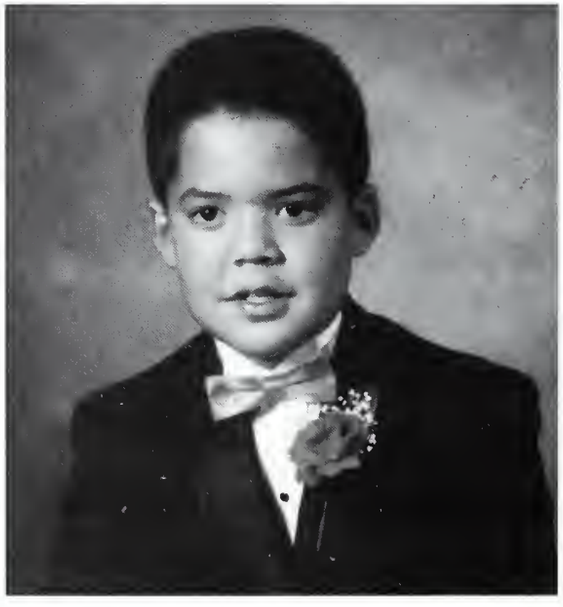
Mike Pike

Dear Mike,
It was only yesterday...
That we heard,"It's a boy!"
That God said, "Here is a child."
That we encouraged you to take your first steps
That we heard you whisper your first words
That we put you on your first school bus
That we entrusted you to others
That we said,"Where has the time gone?"
That we knew we had to give you wings
That we said,"He's growing up. Quickly"
It was only yesterday....
That God gave us the greatest gift ever-You!
Love,
Mom and Dad



Class of 2000

Amy Harrell

Amy,

It seems like just yesterday you were skipping onto the soccer field-the only girl on your team. We've traveled many miles since then. We are very proud of all of your accomplishments, but we are most proud of the wonderful young woman you have become. Stay just the way you are and you will go far in life.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Josh

Class of 2000

Gregg Huey

Gregg,

We adored our punk rock baby and agreed you were the "smartest boy in the universe." We survived wrestling, Star Wars, and drumming on our furniture. We've been impressed by football, band performances, and math contests. We are very proud of the person you've become!

Love,
Dad, Lou Ann, Mom, John, Megan, and Jared

Class of 2000

Michelle Onyebuagu

Michelle,

We are especially proud of you for your achievements academically and at home with your family. We wish you good luck on your commencement and may all your dreams come true.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Natasha, & Jason

Class of 2000

Niki Adamson

Niki,

What a fantastic young lady you are. Your compassion and unselfishness are such important qualities. You always are worrying about everyone else. Remember to enjoy yourself and be who you need to be. We love you and will always be here. God Bless!

Love,
Mom & Dad
Christy and Kimmy

Class of 2000

Katie Tickle

Katie,

Congratulations and Good Luck! We're proud of your accomplishments but more importantly we're proud of the person that you've become. We hope all your dreams come true. With a smile on your face and a song in your heart you can accomplish anything.

We Love You,
Mom, Dad, Laura, Timmy, & Andrea

Class of 2000

Brandon Jones

I'm proud of the person you have always been. From starting sports at the age of four, and continuing throughout with track and cross country in High School. To honor roll throughout your status school years, your and your skills at broadcasting presently. You are my best friend , we have been through a lot together . Remember, I'm always there for you, and love you very much.

Love,
Dad (J.J.)

Class of 2000

Tim Jones

Tim,

From your first day of school, to the last day you have always made us very proud of you and all your accomplishments. We salute you.

Love,
Mom & Dad

Class of 2000

Julie Kiesler

Julie,

Congratulations! Your father and I are very proud of you, and of all your accomplishments. The years have slipped by all too quickly as you grew from our little girl into the special woman you are now. As you proceed through the next level of life, we wish you all the love, support, and success to succeed in all your goals and dreams.

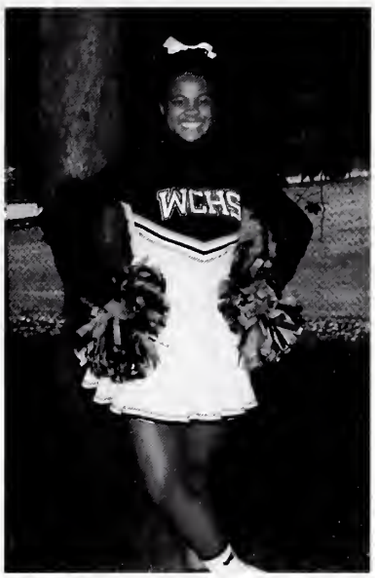
We love you,
Mom, Dad & Brian

Class of 2000

Danitra Edmond



Danitra,

You have such spirit and a character all your own. You are a doer and an achiever of what you believe in. I'm so proud of the dreams you have and the conviction you have to make those dreams come true. Your world is bright, new, and bursting with possibilities.

Love,

Class of 2000

Laura Brower

Laura might never reach the hall of fame,
But she will do her utmost just the same.

Just as active as she is bright,
In Warren High School she fits just right.

Laura is one fine girl,
In fact, we think she is a pearl.

A popular girl with a friendly smile,
She leads many others by a mile.

Love,
Mother and Dad

Class of 2000

Gennie Eno

Thank you, Gennie that your greatest love is the Lord.

Delight yourself in the Lord and He will give you the desires of your heart.

Psalm 37:4

III. John 4 - I have no greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth.

Class of 2000

Nita Shaw

Nita,

We are all very proud of what you have accomplished throughout your life. From dancing at the age of four, to being a top ten student as a senior (its amazing what you will do for a free ring). You have a charm and grace (from your mom) and the ability to argue your beliefs publicly (from your dad) and still there is a kid deep inside you (from your sister). Good luck in all you do, remember where you've come from and remember where you are going. Always be yourself and you will always be successful.

Love,

Mom, Dad & Erin

Class of 2000

Allison Leigh Budgeon

What an exciting day July 19, 1982 was for our family. Our little angel was born and Jenny met her baby sister. From Barbie dolls and tap dancing to the wonderful young lady you have become, we cherish the memories we have and the ones we still look forward to. As we watch you graduate we want to say how proud we are of your accomplishments. We wish you a wonderful future.

Our Love Always,
Mom, Dad, and Jenny

Class of 2000

Josiah Trueblood

How exciting graduating in the year 2000! We are so proud of the young man you have become! Your spirit, attitude, and compassion are wonderful traits. Follow your dreams and live each day to the fullest. The world is yours. Reach for the stars; they are not that far away.

Love,
Dad, Mom, and Abigail

Class of 2000

Nicole Elam

Nicole,
Once you were a brown-eyed little girl with so many dreams inside her head...
Now you're a beautiful young woman with so many accomplishments to be proud of...
And from the moment you were born to now, no one could be more proud of you than we are.

Love,
Mama & Daddy

Class of 2000

Jessica Canavan

To my "little" girl,
You truly are my SUNSHINE. I'm so very proud of you. Remember to keep shining as stars in the universe and God will direct your path.

Jessica Clark

Class of 2000

Jessica Rene,
The first moment I held you, I KNEW you were special.
We've watched a little "duckie" grow from red fraggle pig tales to homecoming Princess. And now...

You are a young woman of Spirit, Strengh, Insight, Purpose, Courage, Compassion, and Creativity.
Go forth now, with the fire of Confidence in your heart, and never let its brilliant flame go out.

Know you are loved, for everything you are. Know you are special, every moment, every day. Know you have a contribution to make, and it matters. Believe in yourself, and your dreams...WE DO!!

Love,
Mom and Sue

Class of 2000

Nan,

Your years in High School have brought you to a special time in your life. It's hard to believe the little girl that disappeared off of the trampline video is on her way to college. I'm very proud of you.

Dad

Nan,

Hello, this is your sister! Word! Congrats on everything you achieved your high school years! We're all proud of you. Good luck always. I'll always be here for ya if you need someone to talk to.

I love you,
Awnie

Nan,

As Mother and Daughter we've grown to be best friends. I cherish our friendship. Your leadership capabilities will help you achieve anything you set out to do. Keep shooting for the stars.

Love you,
Mommy

Monica,
When you were born , the class of 2000 seemed so far away. Well, you've made it Monica. We know that the start of high school was a struggle, but you were determined to reach your goal. You've given your all to Color Guard, your friends, your classes and family. As you get ready for Indiana University next year, go with the knowledge that we love you very much and are very proud of you.

Love Always,
Mom & Dad

Colette Armstrong

Class of 2000

Dear Colette,

Remember what you have done
Dream of what you want to do.

You have made it all happen by having confidence in yourself and working to accomplish your goals.

Remember what you have done
Dream of what you want to do.

Keep reaching out to new people, new places, new ideas, new adventures, and new heights.

Remember what you have done
Dream of what you want to do.

Smile and touch the stars.
They are always within your grasp.

Remember what you have done
Dream of what you want to do.
And always know we believe in you.

We love you,
Mom and John

Adrienne Henry

Class of 2000

Adrienne,

It doesn't seem possible that the time is here for you to graduate. We are very proud of the success and accomplishments that you have achieved. You have brought so much joy into our lives. As you go away to Ball State next year, always remember we will be there for love and support in whatever you do!
Congratulations!

We love you,
Mom, Dad, and Cameron

Tamara Brummer

Daddy's little princess
Bubby's tiny playmate
Mommy's snuggle-bunny,too
Sent from heaven above
they told us you were special
We had someone else to love.
You gave us pleasure
We're truly proud of you.

Moody, such a beauty, level-headed, smart.
God truly blessed us
When he gave us you, sweetheart.

All the best will come to you.
You have what it takes.
All we did was make you ready for the race.

Daddy oversees all your special events.
Because of his big heart, choices some children can only dream about are yours. God Bless You!

Class of 2000

Sarah Smock

To my Princess :
This is your last year at home
then to college
new people
new environment
new learning
I know you are more than ready
You are so strong
in your beliefs and values that you will be comfortable in any situation in which you find yourself
And always remember that though we will say good-bye for now
your family loves you
I believe in you....
Keep believing in your dreams!
Love,
Mom

My Little Girl

Where are you going?
My little one, my little one,
Where are you going?
My baby my own.
Turn around and you're one.
Turn around and you're four.
Turn around and you're a young girl,
Walking out the door.
Where are you going?
My little one, my little one,
Pig-tales and fairy tales,
Where have you gone?
Turn around and you're tiny.
Turn around and you've grown.
Turn around and you're a woman,
going out on your own.
Best wishes at college!
Love always,
Mommy and Dad

COLOPHON

800 copies of the 63rd volume of the yearbook were printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks at the cost to students of $40 each. Mrs. Cathy Wolfe served as the Herff Jones representative, and Lori Daniels was the in-plant consultant. Mrs. Alison Baldwin was the yearbook advisor, Mr. Mark Haab was the Publications Director, and Mr. Tony Burchett was the principal. The book was printed on 100 lb. bordeaux paper. All photos were taken and developed in Warren Central's darkroom by the staff photographers, or taken and developed by Prestige Portraits. All page layouts were created on Pagemaker 6.5 software.

Finally, we can all breathe a sigh of relief. With all the problems we encountered with our computers it seemed like we would never get this book done. Fortunately, we had a dedicated staff determined to produce a yearbook that we could all be proud of.

Our year got off to a good start before school ever started with eight of us attending a summer journalism camp at Ball State. It was there that our ideas began to develop, and we decided to take the focus of the book off the new millennium and put it back on the students. The first few weeks of school were spent brainstorming themes and coverage ideas until we were finally satisfied with the tone the book was taking and the direction it was heading in. Thankfully, many of our ideas never made it out of our brainstorming sessions and are probably better off forgotten (i.e., Taste the Rainbow, For a Good Time Call...).

To the staff: Thank you all so much for all of the time you put into this yearbook. Some of my best times in these past four years were spent in the J. room. Whether we were working together in class or just hanging out, this whole experience has left me with memories that I will always remember. Between living off of white pizza, me nearly dying, and Tiffany and Jordan switching the rooms on Katie, BSU was a week that I won't soon forget. (Thank you again for taking care of me, guys!) The countless memories that I have of my hours spent in the J. room are irreplaceable. Though it got stressful at times we all managed to pull together and help each other out until the work got done. Of course, an exasperated "Ship!" from Angie was always good for lightening the mood too. Once again, thank you all for everything.

To Mrs. Baldwin, our advisor, thank you for everything you did for me and the staff this year. You never stopped believing in my ability to pull this whole thing together. You allowed me the freedom to make decisions and offered your guidance when I was at a loss. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to lead the staff in our production of this yearbook and for trusting me with the incredible amount of responsibility that went along with it. And of course, I have to thank you for not lowering our grades after Jenny and I brought Pennywise back...you just never know when and where he'll show up. To Mr. Haab, thank you for everything you did to help out the yearbook staff this year. I don't know what we would have done without you, especially when it came to the computers. Thank you again for not complaining too much each time you had to replace my computer with a new one, though I only take responsibility for breaking three computers, any other ones were not my fault. Thank you both for all that you did this year and for making the four years I spent in the J. room memorable. And by the way...are you guys in need of an extra chaperone to the fall convention next year?

Photography editor Jenny Zigler is on the other side of the lens for a change. The entire staff depended on Jenny to make sure pictures were taken and developed on time.

Staff members Christina Knight, Jordan Smith, Tiffany Smith, and Jennifer Lucas take a few minutes to relax after finishing their work. Several members of the staff came in during the summer to put the finishing touches on the yearbook.

After a year of putting the yearbook together, the stress of working with Katie Hickle has finally caught up with Allison Dudgeon. (I'm just kidding Hickle, the J. room wouldn't have been the same without our Ad Girls.)

(right) After diving for a foul ball and missing it, junior Aaron Stevens walks back to the plate during the first game of a double header. The varsity team defeated Terre Haute South with a score of 5-2 and Terre Haute North 2-1.

(right top) The prosecution at the International Relations trial takes a moment to gather and discuss their strategy against the containment policy. The trial, which lasted first through tenth hours, ended with the jury deciding in favor of the defense.

(right middle) Seniors gather in the Performing Arts Center to see Vitamin C perform at an end of the year concert. Students won the concert, sponsored by local radio station, WZPL, by sending in the most entry forms of the area high schools.

(right bottom) Seniors return to their seats after receiving their diplomas during the commencement ceremonies held at Conseco Fieldhouse. The Class of 2000 was awarded with over one million dollars in scholarship money.

And so it ends. Another year of high school. not all that different from the ones before or the ones still to come. is over. And maybe this book wasn't quite the high school experience that you remember. but it was a true-life story of what the student body as a whole encountered throughout the year. The photographs from the games. the dances. and the hallways of Warren are sure to bring back a flood of memories of all the good times you had while in high school. Remember the sound of echoing cheers through the gym as the faculty defeated the seniors in basketball. the feeling of relief when you had turned in your last final. and the sight of the hallways being filled in a sea of black and gold gowns as the seniors displayed their pride during senior week. Of course. the stress brought on by countless hours of homework and the dreaded buzzing of an alarm clock waking you up hours before you actually feel awake won't soon be forgotten. but somehow they will be overshadowed. and you will find yourself flipping back through these pages reliving your favorite memories. So look back on this year nostalgically and remember that high school was the best time of your life. . or so we've heard.
